INTRODUCTION

The subject of claims is important in the history of relations between the United States and Mexico. Mexico's troubled history, its proximity to the United States, and the presence there of a considerable number of United States citizens making large financial investments have given rise to irritating controversies, many of which have resulted in claims. While some of these claims have been settled through regular diplomatic channels, the usual method of settlement has been through international tribunals. Often claims have accumulated for a number of years before the Governments of the two countries agreed to establish an international claims commission to settle them. Such a claims commission has consisted of one or more commissioners from each country and a neutral person serving either as umpire or chairman. It has been customary for commissioners to be appointed by each nation's Chief Executive and the umpire or chairman to be selected by mutual agreement between the two Governments. The commissioners have been responsible for hearing and deciding all claims, sometimes with assistance from the neutral person. If the neutral person served as chairman he would sit with the national commissioners as presiding member and take part in the hearing and deciding of all cases, but if he served as umpire he would be called upon only to decide the disputed points in cases of disagreement between the commissioners. In addition it has been customary for each nation to appoint an agent and counsel and a secretary. The agent has been responsible for preparing and presenting to the commission all claims of the Government he represented. The secretary has been responsible for keeping and maintaining the records of the commission. After claims were settled on an international level and the total amount of awards were determined, the work of an international commission would come to an end. At this point the usual pattern has been the establishment of a domestic claims commission to effect a just distribution among individual claimants of whatever funds had been received as indemnity.

United States participation in the international commissions has been carried on under the auspices of the Department of State pursuant to congressional authorization. The resulting records have usually been preserved as a body in the Department and comprise part of the records in Record Group 76, Records of Boundary and Claims Commissions and Arbitrations.

This inventory has been organized according to the commission or entity that created the records, and consequently records are described as those of a particular organizational unit that produced or accumulated them.

This inventory covers all the records in the National Archives in Record Group 76 that relate to claims of the United States and Mexico. They amount to 1,035 cubic feet and were received from the Department of State. Records relating to unsettled claims less than 50 years old and all records dated later than December 31, 1929, may be examined only by permission of the Department of State.

Records relating to those described in this inventory are in Record Group 59, General Records of the Department of State; Record Group 84, Records of the Foreign Service Posts of the Department of State; records of the United States Commissioners of the American and Mexican Joint Commission, 1916, in Record Group 43, Records of United States Participation in International Conferences, Commissions, and Expositions; records of the Committee on Foreign Relations To Investigate the Matter of Outrages on Citizens of the United States in Mexico (Senator Albert B. Fall, Chairman), in Record Group 46, Records of the United States Senate; Record Group 39, Records of the Bureau of Accounts (Treasury); and records relating to claims of Mexican citizens arising out of the landing of United States Marines at Veracruz in 1914 and General Pershing's Punitive Expedition of 1916, in Record Group 153, Records of the Office of The Judge Advocate General (Army).

RECORDS OF UNITED STATES AND MEXICAN CLAIMS COMMISSIONS

RECORDS OF THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS, UNITED STATES AND MEXICO, CREATED UNDER THE CLAIMS CONVENTION OF APRIL 11, 1839

When the United States established diplomatic relations with Mexico in 1825, various incidents had already given rise to claims of citizens of one country against the other country. During the next decade these claims, some of which dated back to Mexico's struggle for independence, continued to increase. Many were based on allegations that United States vessels had been fired upon, that United States citizens had been illegally arrested and maltreated, and that their property had been confiscated.

To correct this situation the United States and Mexico signed a claims convention on April 11, 1839. It provided that all claims based on injuries to persons and property of citizens of the United States suffered before April 11, 1839, should be referred to a Board of four Commissioners, two to be named by the President of each country. The Board was to meet in Washington and was given a period of 18 months to decide upon the justice of the claims and the amount of compensation, if any, due from the Mexican Government. In case of differences between the Commissioners, the King of Prussia or his representative was to act as Umpire.

An act of Congress, approved June 12, 1840 (5 Stat. 383), provided for the appointment of the two United States Commissioners and a Secretary. On June 16, 1840, President Martin Van Buren appointed William L. Marcy and John Rowan as the United States Commissioners; Alexander Dimitry was appointed Secretary. On June 20, 1840, the Mexican President, Anastasio Bustamante, appointed Pedro Fernandez del Castillo and Joaquin Velazquez de León as Mexican Commissioners; Lucas de Palacio y Magarola was appointed Secretary. The King of Prussia appointed Baron Roenne, then minister resident of Prussia at Washington, as the Umpire.

The Board met in Washington from August 25, 1840, to February 25, 1842. During this time a total of 109 claims was presented to it. The Board, however, reached final decisions in only 72 cases. Awards totaling $439,393.82 were granted in 11 cases, 4 cases were rejected, and 57 cases were transferred to the Umpire. The Umpire rejected 4 of the 57 cases while awarding to the 53 others $1,586,745.86.

At the end of the 18-month period much unfinished business remained. Besides the 37 undecided claims that were under consideration as the Board expired, there were several additional claims of United States citizens ready for presentation that the Board was unable to accept or examine because of the lack of time (see entry 9). These additional claims as well as the 37 undecided claims were later taken up by the United States Board of Commissioners established in 1849.

RECORDS OF THE UNITED STATES BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS, ESTABLISHED BY AN ACT OF CONGRESS OF MARCH 3, 1849

The treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, signed February 2, 1848, which ended the war between the United States and Mexico, provided for the assumption by the United States of all unliquidated claims between the two Governments to an amount not exceeding $3,250,000. Thus the United States Government freed Mexico from all pending claims of United States citizens that arose before the date of signing the peace treaty. The claims included those that the Board of Commissioners, 1840-42, had decided in favor of United States citizens but that the Mexican Government had failed to pay in full, claims that had not been presented or had remained undecided under the convention of 1839, and new claims that had arisen during the period 1839-48. The United States agreed to set up a domestic Board of Commissioners to decide upon the validity of the claims and the amount of compensation, if any, due to each claimant.

The Board was established by an act of Congress approved March 3, 1849 (9 Stat. 393), which provided for three Commissioners and a Secretary to be appointed by the President of the United States. The Board was to be in session for a period of 2 years. President Zachary Taylor appointed George Evans, Robert T. Paine, and Caleb B. Smith as the three Commissioners. William Carey Jones was appointed Secretary.

The Board was in session from April 16, 1849, to April 15, 1851. During this time it awarded $3,208,314.96 in 198 cases and rejected 70 cases.

RECORDS OF THE COMMISSION, UNITED STATES AND MEXICO, CREATED UNDER THE CLAIMS CONVENTION OF JULY 4, 1868

On July 4, 1868, a convention was concluded between the United States and Mexico for the adjustment of all claims of the citizens of either country against the Government of the other that had arisen since the signing of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, February 2, 1848. The convention provided for the submission of all claims to two Commissioners, one to be appointed by each Government. The two Commissioners were to name a third person as Umpire to decide those claims on which the two Commissioners could not reach an agreement.

An act of Congress approved April 7, 1869 (16 Stat.7), contained provisions for carrying the convention into effect. The Commission was organized at Washington on July 31, 1869. William Henry Wadsworth was appointed Commissioner for the United States, George G. Gaither was appointed Secretary (succeeded in 1870 by Randolph Coyle), and J. Hubley Ashton was appointed Agent and Counsel to represent United States interests. Mexico was represented first by Francisco G. Palacio as Commissioner (succeeded in 1872 by Leon Guzmán and in 1873 by Manuel Maria de Zamacona), J. Carlos Mexia as Secretary, and Caleb Cushing as Agent and Counsel to represent Mexican interests (succeeded in 1872 by Manuel Aspiroz and in 1873 by Eleuterio Avila). On June 10, 1870, the Commissioners offered William Cullen Bryant the office of Umpire, but he declined the offer. The position remained vacant until June 24, 1870, when Francis Lieber of New York City accepted it. He served until 1872, when he was succeeded by Edward Thornton.

Randolph Coyle, United States Secretary, and J. Carlos Mexia, Mexican Secretary, were the custodians of all documents and records of the Commission, and it was their duty to keep them systematically arranged. The Secretaries also had to furnish each Agent copies of pleadings, notices, and other papers filed with the Commission by the other Agent. Thus the United States Agent received from the United States Secretary copies of pleadings of Mexican claimants filed with the Commission by the Mexican Agent. The United States Agent also accumulated documents regarding United States claims against Mexico which he presented before the Commission. The duties of the Agent, who sometimes acted as Counsel also, are further explained under the heading "Records of the Agent of the United States," and the records he accumulated are described thereunder in entries 61-87.

The United States filed before the Commission a total of 1,017 claims, totaling $470,126,613.40, of which 186 claims were awarded a total of $4,125,622.20 and 831 were rejected. Mexico filed 998 claims totaling $86,661,891.15, of which 167 claims were awarded a total of $150,498.41 and 831 were rejected.

The Commission was to function for 2 1/2 years from the day of its first meeting, but it was extended by conventions between the United States and Mexico signed April 19, 1871, November 27, 1872, November 20, 1874, and April 29, 1876. The Commissioners adjourned on January 31, 1876. The Umpire, however, under the convention of April 29, 1876, was given additional time to decide the cases referred to him during the last days of the Commission. The Umpire completed his work on November 20, 1876. Records regarding payments to individual United States citizens, however, are dated as late as 1890 because Mexico paid the amount assessed against her in 14 yearly installments. When an installment was received the Department of State took the necessary steps to distribute the money to individual claimants.

Records of the Agency of the United States

In view of the traditional theory that the claims before an international commission are claims of one government against another, individual claimants or their attorneys have not been allowed to appear before a commission to present their claims. This has led to the appointment of a person, designated as agent, whose duty was to present before a commission all claims in behalf of his government and its citizens.

The duties of the Agent of the United States appointed under the claims convention of July 4, 1868, were to serve as counsel for the Government in all matters relating to claims, to prepare the claims of United States citizens, to present them before the Commission, and to prepare defensive arguments against the claims made by the Mexican government. The Agent was required to work closely with the United States Secretary of the Commission, the State Department, and individual claimants and their attorneys. In carrying out his duties, the Agent, J. Hubley Ashton, accumulated and produced a considerable quantity of records relating to claims of United States citizens against Mexico and to claims of Mexican citizens against the United States. Some of these records are duplicated in the Commission records. Most of the records of the Agency (the office of the Agent) are described below either as those relating to claims of United States citizens or as those relating to claims of Mexican citizens.

Van Vollenhoven of the Netherlands (succeeded by Kristian Sindballe of Denmark and Horacio F. Alfaro of Panama). The Commission functioned from 1924 to 1931, with numerous interruptions. In 1931, when activities were suspended, 3,617 claims had been filed with the Commission, 54 claims had been disallowed, and 94 claims had been allowed for a total amounting to $4,646,926.59.

Work was resumed under an agreement of April 24, 1934, with two Commissioners only and under new procedural methods. The provision for a neutral Commissioner was eliminated. United States Commissioner Oscar W. Underwood and Mexican Commissioner Benito Flores were instructed to appraise separately all claims not yet disposed of and to get together in an attempt to reconcile any differences between them regarding final disposition. A period of 3 years was allowed for this work. In 1937, when the Commissioners filed their report, it was found that they had agreed on the final disposition of only a small number of claims. Little was accomplished by the two Governments toward effecting a final settlement until November 19, 1941, when the United States accepted $40 million as full payment. Individual United States claimants were to receive their awards later from a domestic claims commission known as the American-Mexican Claims Commission. The records of the American-Mexican Claims Commission are not in the National Archives. The interests of the United States before the General Claims Commission and the Special Claims Commission (entries 114-125) were represented by one Agent whose office, the Agency, created and accumulated records pertaining to the Commissions. These records are described in entries 125-185.

RECORDS OF THE SPECIAL CLAIMS COMMISSION, UNITED STATES AND MEXICO, CREATED UNDER THE CLAIMS CONVENTION OF SEPTEMBER 10, 1923

The Special Claims Commission was established by a convention signed by Mexico and the United States on September 10, 1923, for the purpose of adjudicating claims arising from injuries and losses sustained by United States citizens during the period from November 20, 1910, to May 31, 1920, as a result of the revolution in Mexico. In accordance with the provisions of this convention a three-man commission was established composed of a citizen of the United States, a citizen of Mexico, and a citizen of a neutral country. The Commissioners were as follows: Ernest B. Perry, succeeded by Fred K. Nielsen in 1931, from the United States; Fernando Gonzales Roa from Mexico; and Rodrigo Octavio of Brazil, neutral chairman, succeeded in 1928 by Kristian Sindballe of Denmark, and in 1931 by Horacio F. Alfaro of Panama. The Commission functioned from 1924 to 1931 but was not in continuous session. During this 8-year period 3,176 claims were filed, 18 were disallowed, and none were allowed. In 1931 activities of the Commission were suspended.

No further progress was made by the two Governments in disposing of the huge mass of unsettled claims until April 24, 1934. On this date the United States agreed to settle for the payment of a lump sum of money, which was to be computed on the basis of amounts awarded on the same class of claims to the Governments of Belgium, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, and Spain. The exact amount of this liability was to be computed by a Joint Committee composed of one representative of each government, whose decision was to be accepted as final. The United States representative on the Joint Committee was Edgar Turlington, and the Mexican representative was Manuel J. Sierra. The conclusion reached by the two representatives was that $5,448,020.14 should be paid by Mexico to the United States. Individual United States claimants were to receive their awards later from a domestic claims commission known as the Special Mexican Claims Commission (see entries 186-203). The interests of the United States before the General Claims Commission (entries 100-113) and the Special Claims Commission were represented by one Agent whose office, the Agency, created and accumulated records pertaining to the Commissions. These records are described in entries 125-185.

Records of the Agency of the United States

Article III of the convention of September 8, 1923, and article IV of the convention of September 10, 1923, between the United States and Mexico provided that each Government could appoint agents and counsel who would have the authority to present to the General and the Special Claims Commissions arguments for or against any claim. This provision led to the establishment of the Agency of the United States (usually referred to as the American Agency or the United States Agency) whose duty was to present and defend all claims before these international claims commissions. Each claim filed with the Agency by a citizen of the United States was assigned an Agency number in order of date of receipt. Afterwards, when the claim was presented by the Agency to either the General Claims Commission or the Special Claims Commission, it was assigned a docket number by one of the two Commissions, also in order of date of receipt. Thus most claims bear two numbers. "Agency" numbers run from 1 through 6605, "General" numbers from 1 through 3617, and "Special" numbers from 1 through 3175. The Agency of the United States organized a Research and Information Section to aid the legal staff in gathering all possible information and evidence.

Henry W. Anderson was designated as the Agent of the United States when these Claims Commissions were first organized, and he held this position until his resignation on June 30, 1926. J. Reuben Clark, Jr., served in the position from July to September 1926 and was succeeded by Clement L. Bouvé, who served until 1931. Claims work was suspended from 1931 to 1934. In 1934, when work on claims was resumed, the Agency was revived and Bert L. Hunt was designated as the Agent. Departmental Order No. 596, dated July 2, 1934, placed the Agency under the supervision of Assistant Secretaries of State Wilbur J. Carr and R. Walton Moore and Legal Adviser Green H. Hackworth. This three-man group is often referred to as "The Mexican Claims Committee."

Some of the series of records of the Agency, as well as of the General and Special Claims Commissions, are not complete, clear cut, or well arranged. These faults may be explained by the peculiar nature of the administrative history of the Commissions and other entities which produced and accumulated the records. For example, the Commissions were not in continuous session during their existence. Frequent periods of inactivity and changes in organization and in methods of procedure were not conducive to the maintenance of well-defined and clear-cut series of records. New series of records came into existence after changes were made in organization and procedures. Often a new series would absorb a part of the records of an earlier series, leaving the old series incomplete.

The Research and Information Section, a subdivision of the Agency of the United States, was established to aid the legal staff of the Agency in gathering information and evidence about claims matters. Later, as a result of a detailed study of the needs of the Agency, such activities of the Section were extended to documents of the State, Justice, Navy, and Labor Departments. The Section was also given the responsibility for compiling general historical and chronological outlines of events in Mexico, based largely on documentary evidence in the Department of State. Some of the material referred to in the records has not been located among the records now in the National Archives.

RECORDS OF THE AMERICAN-MEXICAN AGRARIAN CLAIMS COMMISSION

United States Section, Office of the Commissioner

The American-Mexican Agrarian Claims Commission was created in November 1938, by an exchange of notes between the governments of Mexico and the United States. The Commission was charged with the authority to solicit, discuss, appraise, and award claims of United States citizens relating to American owned agrarian properties that had been seized by the Mexican Government between August 30, 1927 and November 1938. Organizational membership consisted of two permanent commissioners: one appointed by the American Government; and the other selected by the Mexican Government. A third commissioner - appointed by the two permanent commissioners - was authorized to participate in resolution of claim appraisals upon which the permanent commissioners could not agree.

Between December 1938 and July 31, 1939, the Commission received 350 claims. American Commissioner Lawrence Lawson considered 259 of these claims as "meritorious", and appraised them for a total value of $15,066,749.85. Another 91 claims remained unappraised (undocketed) when the Commission terminated in December 1942. By terms of the United States and Mexican governments' exchange of notes in November 1938, the Mexican Government agreed to remunerate all awarded agrarian claims. On November 19, 1941 the Mexican and American governments also agreed to limit the Mexican government's fiscal responsibility to a total of 6 million dollars - half of which had been fulfilled by These monies were distributed after December 18, 1942, by the American-Mexican Claims Commission, which succeeded the American-Mexican Agrarian Claims Commission by terms of the Settlement of Mexican Claims Act of 1942. The American-Mexican Claims Commission also heard appeals of several appraised (docketed) agrarian claims, and passed final decision on the 91 unappraised (undocketed) agrarian claims.

RECORDS OF THE AMERICAN-MEXICAN CLAIMS COMMISSION, 1942-1947.

The American-Mexican Claims Commission was established pursuant to the "Settlement of Mexican Claims Act of 1942" (Public Law 77-814) for the purpose of implementing terms of the "Convention between the United States of America and Mexico respecting claims", dated November 19, 1941 (56 "Statutes at Large 1347-1353). Staffed by 4 Presidentiallyappointed commissioners, and legal counsel, the commission assumed two major responsibilities. First, the Commission evaluated and settled a wide range of pending and appealed claims that had been filed by U.S. citizens after July 4, 1868, with previous joint American-Mexican claims commissions. In addition, the Commission also considered a number of "new" claims of U.S. citizens. Among these latter claims were a number of "new" agrarian claims including: those that arose between January 1, 1927, and August 30, 1927, but which were not filed with the United States and Mexican General Claims Commission (1923-1937); claims based on Mexican expropriation decrees signed between August 31, 1927 and December 1, 1938, but which were not filed with the American-Mexican Agrarian Claims Commission; and claims that arose between December 1, 1938, and October 6, 1940, but which either were not or could not be filed with the American-Mexican Agrarian Claims Commission before July 31, 1939. The commission also considered a number of other "new" claims that had arisen between January 1, 1927 and October 6, 1940, but which were not filed with any previous American-Mexican claims commission.

Most of the commission's work focused on completing claims evaluations begun by predecessor commissions. Public Law 77-814 charged the commission with responsibility for completing or resolving official claims appraisals, and authorizing awards for claims submitted to the U.S. and Mexican General Claims Commission (1923-1937), the U.S. and Mexican Special Claims Commission (1923-1937), and the American-Mexican Agrarian Claims Commission (1938-1942). That law also required the commission to review appeals of previous claims appraisals and decisions, particularly when such appeals were based upon alleged violations of the appropriate predecessor commission's procedures. The law also authorized the commission to commence payment of all approved and uncontested agrarian, general, special, and "Texas cattle" claims from a total Mexican Government appropriation of 40 million dollars, as specified in the above cited Convention of November 19, 1941.

The Commission expired on April 4, 1947, in accordance with provisions of the act of April 3, 1945.

INDEX TO CLAIMS APPROVED OR DISALLOWED. 1943-47. 2 boxes. A1-207

The docketed claims index relates to the following series:

 - •Approved Agrarian Claims Case Files, 1938-1947
 - •Case Files Relating to Disallowed Agrarian Claims, 1938-1947

Registers that were compiled and maintained by the American-Mexican Claims Commission for the purpose of tracking correspondence and documentation in the series "Case Files Relating to General, Special, and Cattle Claims Approved by the American-Mexican Claims Commission, 1943-1947." These registers continue the series of "Registers of Papers Received by the Agency of the United States, 1924-1937," which were compiled and maintained by that Agency to track correspondence and documentation in an earlier series of "Case Files for United States Claimants, 1924-1947." Arranged by U.S. Agency docket number of claim. These numbers were assigned between 1923 and 1937.

CASE FILES RELATING TO GENERAL, SPECIAL, AND CATTLE CLAIMS A1-209 APPROVED. Ca. 1943-47. 544 boxes.

There are also case files for the 462 Texas cattle claims considered by the United States and Mexico General Claims Commission. Many of these cases had been submitted originally to the U.S. Commission to Texas, 1872-73, also known as the "Robb Commission".

The American Mexican Claims Commission added documentation (correspondence, legal documents, award statements, and certifications) to this reassembled series of general, special, and "cattle" claims case files after December 18, 1942.

Arranged by U.S. Agency docket number of claim. These numbers were assigned between 1923 and 1937.

NOTE: Specially Protected Records from this series are in RG 76 Entry P-25.

At the top of each page is the name of claimant, along with American Mexican Claims Commission docket number, and sometimes claim number.
