Nonrecord Material

No employee of the Federal Government may destroy or alienate Federal records without an authorization issued in accordance with the Records Disposal Act and applicable regulations. By definition, certain materials such as printed and processed materials, duplicate copies, etc. are exempt from the requirement and may be destroyed by the holder on his own authority without reference to any outside individual or organization unit.

A considerable volume of nonrecord secondary source material is accumulated by the staff of USCS. These materials are essential to accomplish the mission of the office. Nevertheless, the constant accumulation of this material poses a problem that can only be resolved by regular application of a common ground rule by all professional and supervisory employees. Accordingly, no nonrecord secondary source material over five years old shall be retained by any organizational element of the International Trade Administration, except the last issue of a publication that is printed and except last issues of publications issued to cover a period of two years or longer.

Although it is incomplete, the following list of nonrecord material, with a suggested retention period for each item, is offered to help the user distinguish between record and nonrecord materials, and to help him to dispose of nonrecord items as soon as they are eligible.
